Cast
Dante
Sonia

Setting: On the back porch of Dante's house. Both kids have a huge slice of watermelon.

Dante: [taking an enormous bite of watermelon] Mmm! I love watermelon!
Sonia: Me too! I'm so glad Mom bought one at the grocery store.
Dante: Yeah! I'm going to eat half of it all by myself.
Sonia: [laughing] I don't think Mom's going to like that very much.
Dante: Maybe not. Maybe I'll just eat a third of it all by myself.
Sonia: That doesn't sound much better.
Dante: [shrugs his shoulders] Whatever. I just really like watermelon.
Sonia: [takes an enormous bite and swallows] Wait- Sonia! What are you doing?
Dante: [confused] What are you talking about? I'm obviously eating watermelon. Same as you!
Sonia: Well, I know you're eating watermelon. It's the way you're eating watermelon that I have a problem with.
Dante: The way I'm eating watermelon?
Sonia: Yes, exactly.
Dante: How am I supposed to eat watermelon? I put the watermelon in my mouth, take a big bite, chew it a bit, and then swallow it!
Sonia: Yuck!
Dante: Yuck? How do you eat watermelon, smarty pants?
Sonia: Well, obviously, I put the watermelon in my mouth, take a big bite, chew it a bit…
Dante: That's exactly what I said.
Sonia: Wait! I chew it a bit… and then I spit out the seeds!
Dante: You spit out the seeds?
Sonia: Here, let me show you. [Dante takes a big bite, chews, spits out

WHAT TEACHERS ARE SAYING

"We used this resource for a school wide literacy night! Students loved the different themes and enjoyed reading the different plays with friends, family, and teachers. It was great fluency & comprehension practice for all and an engaging resource overall."

"My class loved using these in my fluency center! We even performed for the class during the last weeks of school."

"I read these plays with my tutoring students as one of the partners. It is much more fun for them than just reading a passage by themselves. It helps them improve their fluency. I like the fact that I can differentiate the levels. They enjoy the topics. Thank you for creating his resource."

"My students love reading dramas together so this was a great activity to keep us reading at the end of the year."
